Britten's Ceremony of Carols is one of my favourite piece of choral music but there is a surprisingly limited choice of recordings available. This record by the Copenhagen Boys is truly disappointing. The tuning is appalling throughout and annunciation (understandably!) is bad. However, the rest of the album is more satisfying.

Britten wrote his cantata, A Ceremony of Carols, during World War II while he was crossing the Atlantic in 1942 aboard a cargo ship. Since then, the choral work has become a classical music staple during the Christmas season, particularly throughout English-speaking countries.

A Ceremony of Carols is a setting for treble voices and harp of some of the medieval texts which Britten loved so much, and is heard every Christmas in cathedrals, churches and concert halls throughout the land. This fresh, sparkling performance completes a thoroughly festive release. Review. The Performance is a fine one. --IRR, Nov'12

Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols" is one of his best-known choral works, and has been recorded on several occasions. This recent (2010) rendition is performed by the girls of the National Youth Choir of Scotland (made up of young people between the ages of 13-15), accompanied by Claire Jones, official harpist to the Prince of Wales.
